CITY TRUSTEES

Letter Received from Carnegie Corporation—Good Report from Lighting Department

All present except Mr. Lane still absent on account of illness.

A communication was read from the Carnegie Corporation of New York informing the city that the sum of $12,500 would be donated to Glendale for library purposes if the city would supply the sum of $1260 yearly for the support of the same. Requested that if the city accept the offer the plans for building be sent to New York for approval. The letter was placed on file.

A request was received from M. A. Shafer, assignee of contract of M. W. McCombs for an extension of 30 days on street work; granted.

A communication was received from the owner of five dogs who had paid the license of two dollars per and wanted to know if there was not a rebate coming to him on account of wholesale rates; filed.

Another conveyed an offer to sell the city some fire hydrant connections warranted to be "anti-freezing." No action.

Bids on the telephone franchise in accordance with advertisement were then opened. There was one bid from the Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (Sunset) offering the sum of $100 for the privileeg of operating in the city. No other bids being received, the bid was formally accepted. Reports were received from the treasurer and the manager of the lighting department. The latter reported that the number of meters being installed every month is over sixty, the total number now in being 1860. The total losses during the three years and three months that the department has been in existence is about eight dollars; the total collections in that time being about $100,000.

The city treasurer recommended that the amount of taxes collected from an old soldier be rebated and that action was therefore taken. A certificate of title and grant deed were presented by the city attorney to a tract of 67 acres of land in Verdugo Canon; on motion of Trustee Thompson seconded by Mr. Coker the proper officers were authorized to close the deal and a warrant ordered drawn for $500, the first payment on the land, the total price being $2045. It is understood that this land in Verdugo Canon is to be utilized in part as a tin can depositary. The engineer presented an estimate on improvement of Riverdale Drive; placed on file. A resolution passed accepting a map showing proposed improvements. Another resolution was adopted declaring intention to improve Riverdale Drive.

Mr. Tower made a motion that the salary of Policeman Everett be paid entirely by the city instead of partially by the business men as at present. There was some delay about getting a second to this motion. Mr. Thompson expressed the belief that business concerns should pay a license tax. Mr. Coker objected to this, believing that the business men are of sufficient benefit to the city to be relieved of any special tax. Mr. Tower thought that it might be well to have the business license so as to equalize the expense of the officer, some concerns refusing the assessment that Officer Everett has been collecting. Finally Mr. Thompson seconded the motion and it passed. The fixing of the officer's salary was deferred for a week.

MUSIC SECTION OF THE TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The music section met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mattison B. Jones to pursue the study of Wagner's life and methods of composition. Mrs. Jones read articles dealing with Wagner's manner of composition and the various motifs used in the Ring operas, a study of which has just been completed by the music section.

Victrola records of the operas, Tristan and Isolde, were thoroughly appreciated, also Humperdinck's "Hanzel and Gretel." The theme of this opera, the music of which is exceedingly beautiful, was taken from Grimm's Fairy Tales, "The Babes in the Woods." It will be presented by the Chicago Opera company which will arrive in Los Angeles the first of March. This meeting marked one of the most interesting and beneficial sessions of this season's work.

The next meeting of the music section will be held on February 20th, at Mrs. Jones' home, and will be a guest day. Mrs. George Hutton, district chairman of music, will be present and will address her audience on the "Modern Orchestra."

Missionary Meeting

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will meet in the church on Tuesday, Februaay 18th, at 2:30 p. m. The annual election of officers will be held and every member is requested to be present. Subject: "The Indians and Korea."

PROPOSED CHARTER

Questions Raised by Mr. E. L. Payne

FOUR IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

The proposed charter for the City of Glendale contains many splendid features, but in the opinion of the writer and numerous others, whose judgment has been consulted, it contains four features that distinctly and materially detract from the document, and which may lose it many supporters.

First. Why should it be necessary to require, as a qualification for an elective officer, two years' residence in the City of Glendale?

Second. (a) Why is it advisable to require, as the sole method of nomination, a deposit of $50 for the office of mayor or councilman?

(b) Why should the amount be $50?

Third. Why should the maximum length of time for a francise to use the streets of the city be forty years?

Fourth. (a) Why should the procedure to effect the removal of an elective officer require a petition signed by forty per centum of the vote cast at the last preceding election?

(b) Why should the said procedure require two elections to effect the removal of the incumbent and the election of a successor?

The first question may at first seem to be of no great importance, but when it is remembered that a large portion of Glendale was recently annexed, and that a larger portion is of recent and rapid growth, that such portions might practically be barred from a wide selection for the office of mayor or councilman by an interpretation requiring said annexed portions to have been annexed two years before a resident thereof would be qualified, the matter assumes a different aspect. Certainly, mere residence is not of any great importance when selecting an officer. If he has been in the community long enough to have identified himself with it, and to be free from the charge of being a carpet-bagger, he should not be barred from office if otherwise qualified.

A charter that is supposed to be framed for an entire community should not cater to any section.

As to the second question, the amount required from a candidate in order that he may have his name placed upon the ticket for mayor or councilman is of importance, as many capable men, realizing that an election is very uncertain in its results refuse to gamble, or are not able to gamble, $50 on results. Admitting that it is desirable to in some manner limit the number of candidates, we contend that such elimination should be by some other method than a mere financial one. A discrimination in favor of wealthier citizens or interests is unjust, and the method provided in the proposed charter is not nearly so equitable as one requiring a petition containing the names of a certain percentum of the electors, which would give any good man, even though he might be a poor man, an opportunity.

The proposed requirement of $50 would enable a corporation or a well-to-do faction to easily place a number of candidates in the field, and would greatly hamper the less wealthy portion of the community in obtaining representative candidates.

The third question is of greater importance than either of the first two. A forty-year franchise is no longer regarded by experts on municipal government as desirable. The consensus of opinion is that a twenty-one-year franchise is amply long enough. Good results have been obtained where that is the maximum limit, and the people's rights and interests are more fully protected by the lesser limit, and opportunities for an enormous profit at the expense of the people are greatly curtailed.

The fourth question is the most vital, as under the proposed charter a dishonest mayor could easily perpetuate himself in office, build up a political machine that would be as impregnable as Gibraltar. The mayor and council, being given practically unlimited power under the proposed charter, should be under the easy contral of the people. The difficulty of securing forty percentum of the voters on the petition for recall, and the obstacles to the recall of two elections instead of one, practically nullify the good effects of the right to recall. Great would be the force of the objection to the expense of such a procedure, and seldom indeed could it be put into effect against the determined opposition of a political machine built up by the great power of the mayor and council.

If fifteen percentum of the voters is deemed sufficient to initiate legislation, if twenty percentum if the entire vote cast at a last preceding municipal election is sufficient to warrant the council in offering a franchise for sale, why should a greater percentum be required in a matter that more vitally concerns the whole people than the initiation of any single piece of gle franchise?

Those holding the above views, and there are many of them, will be glad to hear the above questions answered legislation or the granting of any sin either through the public press or at a meeting to be called for a discussion of the charter.

EDWARD L. PAYNE.

THAT FREEHOLDERS' CHARTER.

Editor News:

Having studied the proposed freeholders' charter, I beg to urge some reasons against its adoption.

First. It will needlessly double the expense of our present simple city government that is exactly suited to our needs. It creates a swarm of new officials and employes, all appointed by one man—the boss provided for in this new "machine" system.

Second. We already have one of the finest city charters in the United States for a simple, homelike, suburban town. It is the statutory charter for sixth-class cities—the product of real, honest, legislative wisdom of a half century, revised as experience showed a need for guarding the public welfare. Even better than this is the statutory charter for fifth-class cities, which we can now adopt at any time. Court decisions for a quarter century have clarified these charters, leaving nothing, hardly, to be desired, creating an inexpensive city government that gives almost all the protection and power needed for the public interest. California's statutory charters (fifth and sixth class) are the wisest and best in the Union. I say this as one known to have expert knowledge on the subject.

The recent extension of the initiative, referendum and recall, and full powers for acquisition of public utilities, has really left nothing necessary to public welfare to be desired, except one power. That power, it is true, is a vital one—the power to organize the masses in each political unit or ward into social and civic centers, so the people instead of the politicians, can act in concert as a unit and thus control their nominations for the primaries. That power, however, has been carefully kept out of the proposed new charter, and bars have been put up against any association not in the secret interests. A simple plan for organizing the masses in each ward, offered by myself, was ferociously "filed" by that freeholders' committee. It would have ended "machine" rule in Glendale forever.

Third. It puts all the power of the city into the hands of one man—the mayor. This feature assures the organization of a most powerful "machine" that would soon equal the Tammany Tiger. Not only so, but it makes the proper and efficient conduct of the city's business depend on the efficiency and honesty of one man, with but small chance in Glendale to get the right man. If we make a mistake in selection, it means misrule, chaos, anarchy. In a word, the charter is "top-heavy," as well as dangerous in creating a powerful "machine."

Fourth. There are several "snakes in the grass"—many other serious objections to this crude and dangerous charter that is evidently a scheme of some secret band or "interest." Of course, too, these "fifteen" freeholders are not experienced in statesmanship, legislation or law. Any scheme they put forward must needs be crude and doubtful, yea, dangerous, when it goes into new and comparatively untried fields of legislation and government. They are all no doubt, good citizens, but they know nothing of the great subject they handle.

Let me add, finally, that some people, women especially, are being misled into support of this proposed charter on the idea that Glendale has not now any charter whatever—instead of having one tested by time and wisdom. One of our brightest women recently gave me as her chief reason for favoring the new charter the fact that we have not now any charter. "You, as a lawyer," she said, "know that." I beg to assure all Glendale voters that, in my judgment, it would be serious folly to adopt this crude and dangerous charter. In another article I would, if you please, expose others of its bad features. Let us "make haste slowly."

A GROWING ESTABLISHMENT

A Glendale Enterprise with a Big Future—The Glendale Laundry After Big Business

A reporter who had not visited the Glendale Laundry for some weeks was surprised the other day at the changes in that establishment. The building has been extended at both ends, making a commodious establishment where there is ample room for machinery and employes who work in a well-ventilated and well lighted room with all conveniences for comfort. The addition of a space forty feet square on the west end gives room for a well appointed office where Mr. W. E. Hewitt, one of the partners in the concern is established. Mr. Hewitt was formerly one of the board of water commissioners in Detroit, who came into the firm Jan. 1st and has settled down to stay with the business of building up a big establishment here and to grow up with Glendale. Since Jan. 1st about $7500 has been expended in betterment of the plant. A new pump has been installed, the boiler room has been remodeled and new machinery added to the equipment. The soap used is manufactured on the spot, the base consisting of the best tallow that can be bought in Glendale while the other ingredients are similar to those used in the finest soaps. Mr. Hewitt is new to the laundry business, but the details of the business outside the office are under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas Woeters, the other partner, whom the reporter found with his coat off and sleeves rolled up jumping from one machine to another, actively supervising every detail of the work. Mr. Woeters is the proprietor of the biggest laundry in Chicago with several hundred branches throughout the United States, and just at present is devoting his entire time to the Glendale branch in the determination to build here one of the biggest establishments of the kind in the state. He is an enthusiast about Glendale's future.

"I started in Chicago twenty years ago," he said, "with a smaller establishment than this, and the possibilities of a big business here are immensely better than they were in Chicago at that time. We have plenty of ground here over which to extend our plant and just as soon as we need more floor space we will have it. We are now employing 35 people and within a year I expect to increase that number to one hundred. The business is here and we are going after it. I shall bring work from Los Angeles, but first I want to get he business of the Glendale people and we will do it by proving to them that we can do better work than it is possible for any establishment in Los Angeles to do. The difference in the quality of water alone enables us to do this, our water supply is soft as rain water and that is a great factor in good work. There is no reason now, whatever there may have been in the past, why Glendale people should continue to patronize the Los Angeles laundries." Mr. Woeters is a believer in patronizing home industries and home labor. No outside contractor was given a chance to bid on the enlargement of the building and all materials possible to secure at home are bought in Glendale and Tropico. While as for labor, local people are employed as far as they can be secured for the work. No chemicals are used in the cleansing of the clothes. A recent innovation is the drying of all underwear in the open air instead of in the drying room. Every effort known to a man of twenty years' experience is being exerted by Mr. Woeters to turn out the best work that is possible anywhere and the energy and vigilance that he exercises in the effort is a guarantee of success.

IOWA PICNIC.

Another call is given out for all Iowans to show up at Eastlake Park, Los Angeles, on Saturday, February 22nd and be counted at the picnic to be held on that date. Program and election of officers at 2:30 p. m. C. H. Parsons, third floor of Chamber of Commerce building, Los Angeles, is secretary.

SAN BERNARDINO ORANGE SHOW

Great preparations are being made for this exhibition which will be held next week beginning Monday and continuing during the week. Every feature of the citrus industry will be displayed and there is a varied and attractive program for every day.

RECEPTION AT THE BURBANK HOSPITAL.

The opening of the Burbank hospital on Febraury 11th, was a marked success and there was a constant stream of callers, many of whom from Glendale, during the reception hours of 12 and 5 p. m. Between 375 and 400 names were registered and a number failed to leave their names. Forty babies under one year of age, all of whom were born in the old hospital, were awarded dainty presents. Miss Thompson, sister of Dr. Thompson, with an assistant, making the presentation speeches. There was music during the afternoon and a tempting lunch for every one, consisting of sandwiches, assorted cookies, fruit, candy, punch and cocoa. The building is a splendid structure, fireproof, and fitted with every modern contrivance. The rooms are all sunny, well ventilated, lighted and heated, and the perfect model of neatness. The operating room on the second floor is everything that could be desired in that line, fitted up with every convenience. Off from this room is the sterilizing room, with a most modern sterilizing machine, stationery washout tubs, linen, closets, etc. A splendid feature of the building is the wide veranda on the upper floor, being so arranged as to allow the beds of the patients to be wheeled out in the open air and sunshine. A large and well-equipped kitchen and dining room is situated in the basement. The building is so arranged that additions may be made as needed. Dr. Thompson is to be congratulated on his new venture and his many friends wish him success.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The recent meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club was undoubtedly one of the best of the year. A concise talk was given by Mr. Frank Muhleman, chairman of the board of freeholders, relative to the proposed city charter. He emphasized the necessity of each voter's becoming familiar with the charter as proposed previous to voting.

Professor E. J. Lickley, superintendent of evening and special schools of Los Angeles, gave an address, the "Troublesome Boy," in a most comprehensive manner. His address was one of the best given in Glendale this year.

Miss Margaret McKee of Los Angeles, the talented young whistler, charmed her audience with several selections.

During the business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. R. E. Chase, a number of new members were admitted to the club and numerous membership applications received. Resolutions drawn up by Harriet Williams Myers, endorsing the proposed laws for the protection of song birds were read and unanimously adopted by the club.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell gave an outline of her plans for the luncheon, of which she is chairman, which will be given for the club on March 11th.

The next meeting of the club will be Household Economics Day in charge of Mrs. Bertha Haffner Ginger.

RAILROAD EXTENSION TO LA CANADA.

Los Angeles papers contain an account of a strong syndicate being formed to take over the Eagle Rock and Glendale Railroad with the object of immediately extending it up through Verdugo Canon to the new townsite of Montrose, La Crescenta and La Canada. According to the plans published it is intended to go ahead with the work of extending the line to Montrose at once, the further extension depending upon the raising of a bonus by interested property owners by Feb. 15th. Mr. Hartranft, president of the road is quoted as saying that the proposed project involves the expenditure of $65,000 for the extension of the road to Los Angeles boulevard in La Crescenta. He expects all question of bonus and other details to be settled by the end of the present week.

SIXTH STREET PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

The Sixth Street Parent-Teacher Association will meet Wednesday afternoon, February 19th, in the school building. The program will be in the hands of the teachers of the school and will consist of patriotic songs and readings by the pupils.

Refreshments will be served and will be in charge of Mrs. H. G. Dominy, Mrs. H. L. Burson, Mrs. Walter Fraley, Mrs. Plummer Van Sant, Mrs. Clarence Newcomb and Mrs. G. Roach.

An invitation is cordially extended to all mothers of the school.

BROADWAY SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Broadway school will be held at the schoolhouse, Thursday afternoon, Feb. 20th. Mrs. E. D. Yard will read a paper written by Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley, the subject of which is "Using our God-given gifts for others." Light refreshments will be served. All mothers of the school and friends are most cordially invited.

MEETING TO DISCUSS CHARTER.

There will be a meeting of the Valley Improvement Association Thursday evening next, Feb. 20th, at the intermediate school house on Third street, for the purpose of discussing the proposed new charter for Glendale. Both sides of the subject will be presented and questions asked and answered. The subject is one of great importance and its discussion should assure a good attendance.

RECORDER'S COURT

Peace Disturbers Fined—Quartette of Youngsters Pay for Being a Nuisance

That Glendale is rapidly becoming a metropolis with all the up-to-date features that the word implies, was emphasized this week in the recorder's office by the appearance before Judge Whomes Tuesday morning of a bunch of four youngsters, two of each sex, who according to the undisputed testimony of the neighbors in the vicinity of Chestnut street, had been making the early morning hours hideous by their hilarity for a week past. When brought into court by Officer Everett the quartet showed proper feelings of shame and the young men plead guilty and were fined $15 each. The girls at first plead not guilty, but upon being informed by the recorder that they would have to stand trial, weakened and changed their plea to guilty, and were fined five dollars each. It seems that the young men had for several nights past been taking the girls on "Joy rides" in an automobile, winding up at the vacant house where they were arrested. Judge Whomes warned them that any further cause of complaint would be treated severely and turned them loose.

David Silverberg who has been in Glendale only a fortnight, having come here direct from England, was brought before the recorder Saturday night, upon the testimony of Dr. R. E. Chase to the effect that he was mentally unbalanced and was by the recorder certified to the county hospital pending examination into his sanity. His condition was such that his relatives were alarmed for their own and his safety.

A Glendale citizen came before the court for the second time on charge of being intoxicated. Fine was suspended under promise of good behavior.

DEATH OF ELMER HARMON THOMPSON, JR.

Little Elmer Harmon Thompson, Jr., who was so joyously welcomed into the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Thompson of Burbank on July 6th, 1912, died on February 8th, 1913, aged seven months. The little one was a very sweet child with golden hair, dark eyes and an exceedingly sweet disposition. He was not a robust child and suffered a great deal most of the time, but even then always had a smile, and his absence from the home will be greatly missed. Private services were held at the home on Sunday, and the little body taken to Forest Lawn Cemetery. Much sympathy is extended the doctor and his wife by a host of friends throughout the valley.

DEATH OF ROBERT H. BEVERIDGE.

Robert Henderson Beveridge, son of Robert and Isabel Beveridge, was born in Bethel, Mercer County, Pa., Feb. 29, 1876, and passed away at his home in Glendale, Cal., Feb. 8, 1913.

He was a student of Allegheny College, after which he entered the piano business in Mobile, Alabama.

On June 15, 1905, he was unitel in marriage at Wheaton, Ill., to Miss Gertrude Loveless.

March last he, with his family, left Illinois, coming to Southern California to benefit his failing health, but grew worse until his death Saturday.

He leaves a wife, two children, three sisters and a brother, besides a host of friends, to mourn his loss.

Death of Wilburn Anderson

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Anderson are extending to them sympathy in the loss of their son Wilburn, aged 16. The boy was brought home from Los Angeles a week before suffering from ptomain poisoning. He was unconscious when brought home and never recovered sufficiently to enable him to tell what was the probable cause of his trouble. He died Sunday evening, the funeral taking place Wednesday morning.

Mr. Jaime Overton, formerly a student at the Royal Conservatory in Berlin, gave a very interesting part of the program at the Ebell Club house on Monday. Previous to his going abroad Mr. Overton frequently played in Glendale in company with the late Edward Fuller, and was known as a violinist of exceptional ability. At that time Mr. Overton was the pupil of his uncle, Mr. A. D. Hunter, a well known musical director in Los Angeles. Mr. Hunter began instructing his nephew when the latter was only four and one-half years of age and at the age of seven he was appearing in concert with noted musicians.

VALENTINE TEA PARTY.

Mrs. Anna L. Smith of Riverdale Drive was hostess on Saturday of one of the most charming afternoon gatherings of the season. Beautiful decorations were carried throughout her home in crimson carnations and Chinese lilies with ferns, combined with hearts and cupids, emblematic of St. Valentine. Exquisite vocal and instrumental music made the afternoon one of unusual pleasure.

At the close of the pleasant occasion tea was served. Covers were arranged for forty guests at most daintily arranged tables.

Mrs. L. C. Brand has returned to her home at Miradero after a three months' visit in New York.

GLENDALE, CAL., FEBRUARY 14, 1913

Poor old Mexico! Will peace ever again prevail over that troubled country? It is pitiful that a country of such great natural resources should be kept a century behind the rest of the world by petty warring factions. It does not seem possible for anything like permanent peace to come to it without the intervention of the United States, a power at once benevolent and potent to accomplish what it attempts. The prospect of intervention is not a pleasant one, but it looks as if it was part of the "White Man's Burden."

The labor organizations which continue to honor the men who have been convicted of crime, are doing more to set back the cause of organized labor than any action of any kind that may be taken by the enemies of such organizations. The confession of the McNamaras and the long record of crimes since disclosed as having been committed by labor union leaders, ought to convince any fair-minded and intelligent workingman that the cause of labor cannot be benefited by the policy of shutting one's eyes and understanding to the long list of crimes committed in labor's sacred name.

OBEDIENCE TO LAW IS LIBERTY.

In all generations of the human race that we have a record of, the most dangerous character and the hardest for society to deal with has been the fanatic, the individual who is a law unto himself, who is wedded to one idea and carries out his theory that the end justifies the means. The asylums and the prisons are filled with people who believe that they are right and that the great majority of their fellows are wrong. The idea that the individual has a right to do as he pleases and that that constitutes freedom, is a relic of the age when man had not evoluted far above the brute. As he advanced in the scale of existence he acquired the wisdom that is born of experience and governments were founded upon the theory that the one must give up his individual freedom of action for the good of the whole. The very flower and fruitage of this idea in government is the republic, an organization of citizens who agree among themselves to be governed by the will of the majority. Over in conservative England, which although nominally a monarchy, gives to its citizens and to aliens as well, the greatest measure of individual freedom, the government is being harried by the militant suffragettes, who, taking advantage of the fact that they are women, are committing crimes daily and nightly that if committed by men would fill the jails to overflowing. The patience and consideration shown by the authorities there certainly deserves better results than it seems to be achieving.

In this country a similar spirit has for some time obsessed the minds of a great many people of both sexes and seems to have been the result of a persistently twisted view of the principles which underlie true liberty. The recent disloosures of organized crime carried on for years in the name of labor, are most discouraging, because of the fact that they were in some cases at least committed by men who imagined themselves performing commendable aets, and there is still further discouragement in the undeniable fact that so many everyday citizens are quick to condone them. Obedience to the law is the test of good citizenship, and every good citizen owes to himself and his fellows the duty of upholding the law by word and act, for any deviation from this line of action tends directly to anarchy.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP AND A SUGGESTION.

Glendale just now is giving to the rest of the world around about it an object lesson in the possibilities of selfgovernment. It is getting a reputation for being a city that does things and does them well. All that is needed to assure the continuation of its success along these lines is more harmonious action among its citizens and a larger participation by the people at large in the affairs of the community. There is nothing done so well in this fallible old world of ours that it cannot be improved upon and the development of this section is so rapid that almost every day may be said to bring new responsibilities so that it is necessary to build for the greater days that are not far removed. The majority of citizens find their time so occupied in their every day affairs that they do not easily find time to devote to matters outside their home circle and a few social duties. But the burden of the business of building up a community should in an ideal condition rest impartially upon the shoulders of all who share its interests.

The first essential in this business of bearing one's share in the burden of citizenship is to get acquainted with the people and the place.

It is no reflection upon the intelligence of our people to assert that one-half of our citizens are not acquainted with the growing young city in which it is their good fortune to live. This is naturally most true of those residents whose daily duty necessitates their spending the greater portion of every week day in the near by larger city. Glendale now covers a territory that extends a distance of about three miles in one direction and half that distance in the other. It is a safe guess that one-half of our six thousand people have never seen the boundaries of the city on all four sides. And yet even to those who do not own automobiles, access to all parts of town is not difficult. Perhaps our efforts to attract the attention of outsiders might be advantageously turned sometimes in the direction of an attempt to get our own people to take at least a half day off now and then in the hope that we might get better acquainted with one another and with the place in which we live. And here is a suggestion along this line. Why cannot the Mid-May Festival and the annual Sunday school picnic (when hundreds of our people spend money and time in going to the seashore) be combined into one grand "Glendale Day" which shall be a public holiday and be devoted to a general mix-up of home people when every owner of an automobile shall contribute its services to carrying the people through the city and to the natural parks in Verdugo and Sycamore canyons, with other features that shall make the day an occasion to be looked forward to as an annual event of supreme importance and remembered as the red letter day of the year?

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

It is well that on every yearly anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, the world should turn aside from its multitudinous duties and pastimes, to ponder over the wonder of his life. For he does not belong to the people of the United States alone, but as Stanton declared in the shadow of his great death tragedy, "Now he belongs to the ages." In every land where the English tongue is spoken and in others where the stories of world heroes are translated from one language to another, the story of Lincoln is a familiar one and always in the telling carries inspiration.

The humblest environed youth in all the world may study the story of Lincoln and be made strong to battle against adverse circumstances; while the youth who has at his service a hundred ministrants to knowledge, where the great emancipator had one, should hesitate long before he complains of the lack of opportunity. There is a scriptural promise of a crown to him who overcometh, and who can doubt that Abraham Lincoln gained in his brief life not one crown but many.

* * *

Sometimes in these days of strong party feeling the question may arise, if living at the present time, to what party would Lincoln belong?

It may please the believers in various political theories to imagine that the greatest of our presidents would agree with them in their view of things, but of this there can be no reasonable doubt—he would uphold the constitution of the United States! He would not agree with those who attempt to belittle the work of the founders of the republic. Belief in the constitution was a religion with Abraham Lincoln and every official act of his was in strictest accord with that basic law of the republic. He believed slavery to be wrong, but as long as he could not see any way under the constitution to abolish it, he refrained from attempting to do so. He did not inveigh against it in "glittering generalities" nor set his own opinion up against it. With the grim old Jackson of fifty years before him he believed that "the constitution must and shall be preserved." He took the law as he found it, and working sincerely and with tireless patience he acted quickly and effectually when circumstances pointed the way by which he might under the law make effective his decree that within the union of States "Slavery shall be no more forever."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

"Lincoln belongs to all the world."

(By Samuel Parker.)

Patriots, join in song of freedom,
Let it resound from shore to shore;
Birthday return of our own Lincoln
Calls for our loudest praise once more.

Lincoln our own; the field's too narrow;
Let no selfish banner be unfurled;
While there's a slave involved in sorrow,
Lincoln belongs to all the world.

Tender at heart as any woman,
Firm as granite defending right,
A merciful sympathetic human,
A measureless power when using might.

His was the task to crush secession—
The glorious union of states to save.
Lo, the result! One banner o'er us;
And there is not in the land a slave.

Peace reigns supreme throughout our borders;
"Birds build their nests in the cannon's mouth";
Under one flag all "marching orders";
Union complete—no North no South.

Many a name is soon forgotten,
Shines for a time, then disappears;
Lincoln's with age shall gather luster,
Shining right on—"a thousand years."

Over this land where floats "Old Glory,"
Brighter his fame as years sweep by;
Mention his name in song and story—
"One of the few not born to die."

IMPORTANT MASS MEETING.

An important mass meeting was held in the intermediate school on Third street last Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing the question of more rooms with which to accommodate the growing enrollment of the Glendale schools. At this meeting A. B. Heacock, one of the trustees, stated that during the past six months there had been a growth of about 20 per cent in the number of pupils, and that if the present rate of growth should continue during the next few months it would be altogther too small to accommodate the children. It was declared that the Casa Verdugo school will be hardly large enough to take care of the present surplus of scholars. R. C. Sternberg and Prof. A. M. Brooks also explained the situation.

At this meeting the trustees, consisting of R. C. Sternberg, A. B. Heacock and C. S. Westlake, were instructed to appoint a committee of five local citizens, three men and two women, to formulate a plan of relief, this committee to report at a mass meeting which will be called in two or three weeks. The committee appointed consists of Mrs. E. U. Emery, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, J. W. Usilton, R. L. Payne, and J. W. Dunham.

BURBANK GETS MAIL DISPATCHER.

New Exchange Device Is Accepted by U. S. Government and Adopted by Southern Pacific Railroad.

By Albert Marple.

An improved mail exchange device has been invented by William H. Jones of Manhattan Beach, California, and the work of the device is proving so efficient that it promises to revolutionize the practice of transferring mail to and from trains that are traveling at a high rate of speed. Up to this time there is no part of the equipment of the railway companies that has been so much neglected and has remained in a crude state so long as has the apparatus used in the work of exchanging mail. Mr. Jones was impressed by the necessity of some improvement in the way of a mail exchanger while he was postmaster at the small town of Iola, Idaho. The danger arising from the throwing of mail sacks to the platforms of the stations at the smaller towns from the fast-moving trains seemed to him to be something that should be eliminated.

At a recent series of tests made on the line of the Southern Pacific company, it was demonstrated that the work of the dispatcher is indeed efficient. These tests included the exchanging of mail while the speeds of the trains ranged from five to fifty miles an hour. The large exchange sacks, in which were stuffed four ordinary mail pouches, ranged in weight from fifty to 450 pounds. To further demonstrate the ability of the dispatcher one of these heavy sacks was transferred from the car to the standard simultaneously with one being deposited inside the car from the standard, this being done while the test train was traveling more than 40 miles an hour. The final test came, however, when three ordinary egg cases filled with eggs were put into an exchange sack and the bag exchanged while the train was making better than 40 miles an hour. It was found upon investigation that not an egg had been broken. Later most of these eggs were sold, while several were set under a hen, a seventy-five per cent hatch resulting.

The Jones dispatcher is different from any exchanger thus far invented. Instead of being simply a straight wooden arm, the horns of the standard which catch the sack from the car are circular, the diameter of the circle being about eight feet. Being quite thick at the rear, the horns taper toward the front, overlapping about four feet on the side nearest the track. Some four feet from the tips there is a joint in each horn, permitting the horn to be turned in when not in use. Inside the car a track is fastened to the ceiling, running from the center of one door across the car to the center of the door opposite. To this track hangs a steel carriage, having a delivery arm and receiving hand at either end.

When it is desired to make an exchange the mail clerk in the car fastens an especially-prepared ring to a large exchange sack, which has already been filled with mail pouches, and attaches this ring to the delivery arm of the sliding carriage. When the exchange point is being approached the clerk simply pushed the carriage out of the door of the car, where it becomes locked to the side of the door when it has reached a given point. In addition to locking the delivery arm this one movement latches the catcher hand, which is to take the mail from the standard. At the station the agent also fastens a ring to one of the exchange sacks and this ring he slips into the slot at the end of the delivery arm.

The exchanging of the sacks is done in a second, the sacks traveling so rapidly that the naked eye can hardly see the move. Both sacks are exchanged at the same moment. The transaction consists of the sack hanging on the delivery arm of the standard being caught by the catcher hand in the car and deposited on the floor of the car, while the sack hanging on the delivery of the sliding carriage in the car is caught by the receiving horn on the standard, around which it whirls, stopping when it reaches the back of the horn. The weight of the sack, in addition to the balancing ball, causes the horns to tip backward so as to make the law-required clearance of the track.

The standard is about fifteen feet in height. The horns rest in a cradle, which in turn is supported by the tubular crane, which ranges from about two and a half feet at the bottom to one and a half feet at the top. This standard is buried in a foundation of cement which is about two feet thick. At the top of the cement around the standard is a platform for the convenience of the agent. An iron ladder, hinged to the platform, is fastened to the horns by means of an iron chain. When it is desired to set the dispatcher this ladder is lowered, its weight as it falls pulling forward the horns to the exchange position, which is horizontal.

Following the tests the Jones dispatcher was accepted and endorsed by the United States government and was also adopted by the Southern Pacific company, which company has already established the system on its California (Coast) division. The dispatchers will be placed on the entire holdings of the company just as soon as practicable. It has also been adopted by other railway companies and is manufactured by the Universal Mail Dispatcher company of Los Angeles.

It may be of interest to people of this valley to note that in placing the standards the company decided upon Burbank as one of the exchange points, and one of the apparatus has been erected at that place. This system has already been put in daily use.

OPENING OF THE BURBANK HOSPITAL.

The opening of the Burbank hospital took place Tuesday, February 11th. A reception was held from 12 to 5 p. m., with lunch and music. Not the least interesting part of the program was a baby show.

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 6.—The by-products of citrus fruits will constitute one of the interesting and instructive exhibits at the third National Orange Show to be held in San Bernardino, Feb. 17 to 22. Through these by-products much fruit that would otherwise be lost, is made to return a revenue to the grower.

More and more attention is being given this feature of the citrus fruit business and the exhibits in this line will therefore have added interest to all interested in devising plans for getting the greatest possible revenue out of their crops.

Every device used in the culture and growth and handling of citrus fruits is also shown in the industrial section of the show. There are the cultural tools, smudge pots, fumigation methods, spraying devices, picking equipment, irrigation appliances, packing and precooling methods, refrigeration, and in fact everything in conneceion with the industry.

These exhibits are highly educational in their scope, and invariably attract much attention from the growers.

In short, the third National Orange show will be the most complete citrus fruit exposition ever built in America.

THE PREACHER'S PROGRESS.

A few churches, possibly one in a hundred, are well entrenched in the habit of permanent and wholesome relations between minister and congregation. The following generalization applies to them only remotely if at all. For the ninety-nine is an accurate statement.

During the first year the preacher is the church's hired man. The official board has employed the best they could get for the least possible outlay. They view him in somewhat the same fashion they would a new motor car.

If all goes fairly well for the second year the minister becomes a sort of paid counselor to the people of the church. He is looked upon with much the same respect that the local paper and school teacher commands.

In the third year he begins to be accounted a friend of the family, a citizen of the community and the trusted leader of the church's varied activities.

Not until the fourth year does he ordinarily become a real pastor, truly a shepherd of the flock, an actual member of every home, the beloved confidant of every soul.

From this time on to ten, twenty, fifty years, the relationship grows in tenderness and power, in sweetness and fruitfulness. With it no other human relationship outside the abstract home ties of flesh and blood, can compare, for it is thoroughly human and wholly divine.—Christian Evangelist.

SAN FERNANDO TO THE FRONT.

The town of San Fernando, which has been making remarkable strides in development in the last two years, will be the scene in the near future of two celebrations, which will draw to her hospitable confines several thousand people from the nearby towns and the rest of the world.

The first of these will occur about March 1, when the completion of the electric road connecting that city with Los Angeles will be celebrated. Then on May 6th the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce holds a celebration upon the arrival of Owens river water, which it is expected will at that time be turned into the great reservoir. This is a two-day event, the first day's ceremonies to take place at San Fernando, the second in Los Angeles. The people of the valley should turn out generally to celebrate this notable event.

The Scrap Book

How Could She?

A bright spirit of earlier days, Charley McKeand, an advocate ready for any emergency, dropped into court too late one day to read the depositions and found himself faced with the duty of defending a woman for stealing a pair of boots. He burst into a moving harangue and said he would read the very words of her defense on arrest since they bore "the stamp of conscious innocence." He seized the depositions and went on: "Ha! Here we are. Oh, h'm!" He faltered a little when he saw them. "Well, gentlemen, this uneducated woman does not put it as you or I would put it, but I said I would read her words, and I will. What she says is: 'How the —— could I have the —— boots when he was wearing them?' And, gentlemen," continued McKeand in a concluding burst of eloquence, "I ask you with some confidence, how the —— could she?"

Fate.

Two shall be born the whole wide world apart,
And speak in different tongues, and have no thought
Each of the other's being, and no heed,
And these o'er unknown seas to unknown lands
Shall cross, escaping wreck, defying death
And all unconsciously shape every act
And bend each wandering step to this one end—
That one day out of darkness they shall meet
And read life's meaning in each other's eyes.

And two shall walk some narrow way of life,
So nearly side by side that should one turn
Ever so little space to left or right,
They needs must stand acknowledged face to face,
And yet with wistful eyes that never meet,
With groping hands that never clasp and lips
Calling in vain to ears that never hear.
They seek each other all their weary days
And die unsatisfied. And this is fate.
—Susan Mary Spalding.

An Invitation Declined.

Before the Spanish-American war the old battleship Texas, then the hoodoo ship of the navy, while being overhauled at the Brooklyn navy yard was sunk because the yokes of its sea cocks were broken in the course of repairs, and the water poured in just as if the boat had been scuttled. The Texas sank, as everybody knows, and was raised as soon as possible. It was on that occasion that Captain Jack Phillips, one of the bravest and best naval officers, by the way, that ever trod a bridge, won a funny retort from "Fighting Bob" Evans, then commanding the Iowa. When the Texas was raised it was found that in the hull were thousands of eels that had been sucked through the open sea cocks. Knowing Captain Evans' fondness for eels, Phillips had a lot of them sent over to the Iowa. He was somewhat surprised a day later to receive a note of acknowledgment from his brother officer, which read: "The eels were fine, Jack. Sink her again."—Washington Post.

Didn't Need Protection.

"Ed Heffernan, Charley McDonald and Billy Maloney were traveling in the northwest some years ago," according to Drury Underwood, "and had not had a chance to gamble in weeks. They itched to play and at last were reduced to a three handed game of poker in the room which Heffernan and McDonald occupied together. Heffernan was frozen out soon and went to bed and to sleep. McDonald and Maloney kept on, and finally McDonald was all in.

"He undressed and turned out the light, but in getting into bed he had to crawl over Heffernan, who was aroused.

"'Mac,' he said, 'did you lock the door?'

"'No,' answered McDonald. 'What's the use? Go and lock Maloney's door. He's got every cent of the coin."—New York Sun.

Sabbath Desecration.

In illustration of the "dreary Glasgow Sunday" a lecturer told this story of the late J. L. Toole, the English comedian: He was leaving his hotel in Glasgow one fine Sunday morning when the sun was shining brightly. As he was strolling along George square a policeman eyed him suspiciously and at last approached and said:

"Ye had better tak' care what ye're doin'."

"What am I doing?" inquired Toole and added, with a merry wink, "Why, I'm not even whistling."

"No," replied the Glasgowian in solemn and reproving tones, "but ye're lookin' almost as happy as if it were Monday."

Wanted It Anyhow.

There recently sought the services of a dentist a quaint young Swede, who, at the urgent insistence of his newly acquired wife, came to "get his mouth fixed."

There were a number of teeth too far gone to be filled. Accordingly these were extracted, and then the dentist made an appointment with the Swede for further sittings, when the filling would be done. Instead of leaving the office Olaf hung about expectantly.

"Is there something more you want done?" finally asked the dentist.

"Vell, I dunno," said Olaf, looking doubtfully at the ceiling. "I tank maybe I like leedle gas. My meesis tole me I hov to tak some for my toots. Kef she don't hort too moch I tank maybe I better hov about twenty-fi' cants' worth."—New York Press.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

[Copyright, 1912, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.]

The Call of Abram. Gen. xii:1-9.

Golden Text—I will bless thee and make thy name great, and be thou a blessing. Gen. xii:2.

(1.) Verse 1—How had Abram learned to know the voice of God?

(2.) What reason is there to suppose that every man has the potential power to hear and understand the voice of God?

(3.) Where was Abram residing at this time?

(4.) When a godly man leaves the old country to reside in this country with the conviction that it is the will of God why is not God speaking to him precisely as he spake to Abram?

(5.) When honeybees "swarm" why would it not be right to say that God causes them to do so?

(6.) Verse 2—How has God's promise to Abram that he would make of him a great nation been fulfilled?

(7.) In how many important respects have Abram and his descendants been a blessing to the world?

(8.) Verse 3—What nations in the past have persecuted the Jews, and what punishment has God inflicted upon them as a result?

(9.) Has the promise, "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed," been fulfilled, and if so, how?

(10.) Verse 4—If Abram had been in doubt about obeying God and had delayed his departure, what probably would have been the result?

(11.) At what age is a man too old to start for a new country or take up a new enterprise to better his condition? Why?

(12.) Verse 5—When we have anything good from the Lord, why ought we to be anxious to share with others? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(13.) If a man says he is on the road to the heavenly Canaan and takes no person with him, what would be your assumption?

(14.) What ground for certainty have we of reaching the land or attaining the object that God has promised us?

(15.) If a man starts for heaven, may he, or not, and why, be certain of getting there?

(16.) Verse 6—If God calls us to occupy a place now unworthily filled by another, what will happen?

(17.) Verse 7—Is God as able, and as likely, to appear to us in one place as another? Give your reasons.

(18.) What imagination have you of the way or manner in which God appeared to Abram?

(19.) Why would you say, or not, that it is a rule with God to frequently repeat his promises to the faithful soul?

(20.) What is among the first things a good man does when he gets to a new country?

(21.) Verses 8-9—Is there or not, and why, any place or condition to be attained on earth in which we cannot make further progress?

Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 23, 1913. Abram and Lot. Gen. xiii:1-18.

Peaks of the Dolomites.

The Tyrol, that rugged land of mountain warfare, has lost much of its lust for battle. But far above its vinclad valleys and crag uplifted castles, hoary with grim memories of hurtling slaughter, there rises a region of embattled spires where the joy of victory may yet be tasted. The battle is not with dukes and their legions, but with those solemn sentinels of the silences, the towering peaks of the Dolomites. These rocky giants, with their defenses of gloomy precipice, icy slope and storm swept ridge, still challenge man to the fray. Health and strength are some of the rewards they offer if approached with due prudence and skillful assault; otherwise they may take a relentless revenge.—New York Telegram.

A Brave Man.

Nicolas, Chevalier d'Assas, a French captain in the Auvergne regiment, born at Vigan, in the Languedoc, while making a reconnoissance during the night of Oct. 15, 1760, at Klostercamp, in Westphalia, met a column of the enemy which was advancing in silence to surprise the French army. He was ordered to keep silent or else they would kill him. D'Assas at once cried out, "A moi Auvergne—the enemy is here!" He was killed on the spot.—Bouillet's Dictionary of History.

Effect of Moral Suasion.

"Bobby, you must go to church with me this morning."

"Mamma, why don't you say, 'Bobby, wouldn't you like to go to church with me?'"

"Well, Bobby, wouldn't you like to go to church with me this morning?"

"Nope."—Chicago Tribune.

A Choice of Evils.

Landlady—Would you advise me to send my daughter to a cooking school or to a music school? Boarder (reflectively)—Well, I think I'd send her to a cooking school. It may be more fatal in its results, but it isn't anything like so noisy.

You Know Him.

Gabe—That guy is a regular human electric sign. Steve—In what way? Gabe—He always looks tough in daytime and is always lit up at night.—Exchange.

THE MORAL IT TAUGHT.

A Quaint Comment on the Success of F. Marion Crawford.

Many visitors to Rome will remember the German book store on the Piazza di Spagna kept by Herr S., of whom a story is told which throws a backward light upon the apparently troublesome activities, as a boy, of a distinguished American novelist. Herr S., who had been established in Rome as a bookseller almost a lifetime, once met in his store another elderly gentleman, who said:

"Isn't it fine, Mr. S., about Frank Crawford?"

"Fine about Frank Crawford? Vot you mean?"

"Why, about his book—a great success. Haven't you heard. Haven't you read it?"

"Read his pook? No. Frank Crawford ride a pook? Imbossible!"

"Oh, yes; no doubt of it. Giuseppe," calling a salesman, "let me have a copy of 'Mr. Isaacs,' please."

When the volume was brought to the incredulous bookseller he held it at arm's length, looking at it curiously as he turned it from side to side and from end to end. Then he cautiously examined the title page with its "—th edition," which he greeted with a guttural "Huh!" Next he turned to the last page and read the concluding sentence with another grunt of astonishment. Then he dipped into the volume in two or three places and finally, satisfied that he was not being deceived, handed back the book to Giuseppe without looking at him and said:

"Vell, vell! Dot brooves dot you must neffer trown a poy."—Baddeley Boardman in Century.

Very Bad Form.

Lord Rocksavage, who leads the Duke of Westminster's set, is handsome, a fine rider, a superb shot and very, very smart in dress. He was strolling one warm and sunny winter morning on the terrace at Monte Carlo. From the cut of his gray flannels a pickpocket realized Lord Rocksavage's opulence and attempted to steal his sovereign purse. But the young nobleman seized in his strong brown hand the pickpocket's grimy paw, and, looking at it disgustedly, he said as he flung it from him, "How dare you put your hand in a gentleman's pocket without washing it first?".

Webster Was Gallant.

Daniel Webster was exceedingly fond of music, and when he was stopping at Willard's hotel in Washington he never ceased to implore the wife of a member of congress, also a guest at the hotel, for "just a little song." He had an old fashioned gallantry in speaking to ladies, and every time he saw the wife of his friend he complimented her most extravagantly on her voice. When Jenny Lind came to Washington Daniel Webster was, of course, among the audience. He had come in rather late from a champagne party and after each song of Jenny Lind's applauded most vociferously. Finally, rising to the pinnacle of enthusiasm, he stood up in the crowded hall and made one of his most gallant bows to the great singer. Then, catching sight of the lady whose voice he also admired, he turned to her, away from Jenny Lind, and made a still lower bow amid the laughter and applause of the audience.

MADE A STILL LOWER BOW.

A Crusher For Conkling.

Roscoe Conkling was a capital boxer and quite proud of his skill. One evening after considerable banter he induced Senator Chandler to "put on the gloves" with him. He played with Chandler for a few rounds, much to the discomfiture of the latter. Chandler bided his time and some time later quietly brought a professional pugilist to dinner where Conkling was a guest. In the course of the evening "Mr. Smith" was induced to engage in a boxing bout with Mr. Conkling. The professional danced around the senator, landing when and where he wished, playing with him as he would with a punching bag. The elegant New York senator was dazed, overwhelmed, humiliated, crushed. When he surrendered and called enough, as he did at last, Senator Chandler smiled blandly and presented the pugilist in his true colors.

HE GOT A SURPRISE.

The Official Who Insisted Upon Seeing an Indian Girl's Face.

On the old Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota they still laugh over the peculiar predicament into which a new Indian agent once got himself.

The agent, an unqualified "tenderfoot," was inspecting an Indian school. Noticing that as soon as he entered the room every girl present brought her hair forward over her face, he asked the teacher to tell them to throw it back so that he might see their faces. But this they refused to do until, after much urging, one girl did finally uncover her face.

After school was over the agent wondered at the strange actions of the girl who had showed him her face. She followed him to his house, entered after him and set about getting his dinner.

ASKED HOW HE LIKED HIS NEW WIFE.

As he spoke no Sioux and she no English he could get no explanation from her.

Finally, to his relief, the teacher rode up. Shaking with laughter, he asked the agent how he liked his new wife! Then the latter understood what he had done. In certain tribes of the Sioux Indians all a man needs to do in order to get a wife is to induce a girl to uncover her face. The agent had proposed in the usual way—and been accepted.

In vain did the agent plead that he already had a wife in the east. There was only one way to get out of it. It cost him the equivalent of fourteen ponies to persuade the Indian girl's father to take her back again.—Youth's Companion

A Lost Fortune.

Lowell once met an acquaintance of dubious standing, whose cheerful face and happy demeanor led him to ask the cause of such exuberant felicity. "Why," said the genial smiler, "I've discovered a way to make my fortune. We all know that the reason for the fine flavor of the wild duck is the wild celery on which it feeds. Now, I propose to feed it to the domestic duck and supply the market." Some weeks later, on meeting his acquaintance again, Lowell found him quite depressed and inconsolable. "Why are you looking so unhappy? I thought the last time I saw you that you were on the point of making your fortune with ducks. Wouldn't it work?" "No," was the reply; "the —— things won't eat it."

He Meant a Wee Nap, Not a Wee Nip.

After a Macon (Mo.) barber had finished up the stranger he raised the chair, and his customer's head fell over to one side. The barber straightened him up and shook him a little.

"You were asleep," said the barber.

"So I was—so I was," agreed the gentleman in the chair. "Well, you'll have to come round to my place of business and take one on me."

"I don't drink," returned Charley.

"Neither do I. I'm the new preacher at the Methodist church."—Kansas City Star.

Not a Boaster.

In the old days, when Kentucky was a Whig state, there was one district that was especially rock ribbed in its Whiggery. Much to the surprise of everybody in Washington, this Whig Gibraltar once sent a Democrat to congress. When the new member reached Washington he was congratulated on his personal popularity that had enabled him to overturn the great Whig majority.

The old chap accepted the congratulations and said he did not want to boast, but proudly declared that he had beaten two Whigs in that election and could have beaten three if they had been running.

Respected His Scruples.

In the mathematics class one day at Williams college Professor S., who was rarely made the subject of college jests, was excessively annoyed by some man "squeaking" a small rubber bladder. The noise seemed to come from near a certain Jack Hollis, and after querying each of his neighbors and receiving a negative answer Professor S. said sternly:

"Hollis, do you know who is making that unbearable noise?"

Hollis, who had been the guilty person all along, assumed an air of stoical bravery and said calmly, "I know, sir, but I prefer not to tell."

Professor S.'s angry face grew calmer, and with evident pleasure he replied: "I respect your scruples, Hollis. They do you credit and should shame the guilty man, sir."

Palaces of Thebes.

The palaces of old Thebes, in Egypt, were probably the largest and most wonderful ever erected by the hand of man. One of them was the container of a central hall 80 feet in height, 325 feet in length and 179 feet in breadth, the roof of which was supported by 134 columns 11 feet in diameter and 76 feet in height. The cornices were of the finest marble, inlaid with ivory work and sheathed with beaten gold. From the point of view of artistic beauty, the Parthenon, of course, still holds the palm and is likely always to hold it.—New York American.

Ancient Mussels.

There are gigantic mussels whose age is assumed to be comparable only with that of the Cape Verde baobab tree and the big trees of California, which live for 5,000 years. Indeed, there appears no particular reason why mussels should ever die, though it is also true that, considering the sort of life a mussel leads, there seems no particular reason why it should ever have lived.—London Express.

All His Fault.

Mr. Binks (with an invalid wife)—Look here, now! This paper says nothing will improve a woman's health like sweeping, baking, bedmaking, dishwashing and polishing the silver. Mrs. Binks—Huh! You know very well you never gave me any silver to polish. No wonder I'm ill!—London Mail.

A Model of Politeness.

"Mrs. X. is as polite as an echo."

"As an echo! What do you mean by that?"

"She never fails to return one's call."—Boston Transcript.

The Scrap Book

His Test of the Antique.

John B. Herreshoff, the blind yacht builder of Bristol, R. I., was a guest at a large party in Bristol when the hostess was proudly displaying a cabinet just received from an antique shop in New York and bought for $700 as a product of the year 1710. It was observed by one of the other guests that Herreshoff alone refrained from favorable comment, although the old man had examined the cabinet by his delicate touch. Finding an opportunity, the man approached Herreshoff and asked him the reason for his silence. Herreshoff chuckled. "I'll let you into a secret if you don't breathe a word of it to the good Mrs. B.," he said. The promise having been given, Herreshoff led the way with his unerring directness to the cabinet, and, extracting a drawer, he ran the tips of his fingers lightly over the bottom and chuckled again: "Circular saws in 1710? Poor Mrs. B.!"

"Goodby."

We say it for an hour or for years;
We say it smiling, say it choked with tears;
We say it coldly, say it with a kiss,
And yet we have no other word than this—
"Goodby!"

We have no dearer word for our heart's friend,
For him who journeys to the world's far end
And scars our soul with going. Thus we say,
As unto him who steps but o'er the way.
"Goodby!"

Alike to those we love and those we hate
We say no more at parting. At life's gate
To him who passes out beyond earth's sight
We cry, as to the wanderer for a night.
"Goodby!"

—Grace Denio Litchfield.

Hard to Catch Up.

Two Silesians seated in a music hall began to argue about the music of Wagner. The argument as it progressed grew heated. The upshot was that the younger challenged the older Silesian to a duel. But the older Silesian declined to fight.

"No, no," he said. "I refuse to meet you. The risks are not equal. You, you see, are a bachelor, whereas I am a married man with three children. I'll tell you what to do. Go get married and wait till you've a family as large as mine. Then when our risks are alike come and challenge me again."

The younger man complied. He married. Three years passed, and one day three years later he went, accompanied by a nursemaid, to his opponent's home.

"Here I am," he said fiercely. "My wife is at home. In this coach are my three children. Now for the duel."

But the older man shook his head.

"Not yet awhile," he said. "I have five now."

Shut Her Up.

In every large hotel the chambermaids are always ready and willing to perform a personal service for the sake of the customary tip that accompanies it. Remembering this, the woman tourist who was stopping at a famous hotel in Cairo rang at last for assistance after vainly struggling for fifteen minutes with the intricacies of the rear fastenings of her gown. To her dismay, one of the Arab porters responded to her ring.

"Madame requires something?" His voice was soft and sweetly modulated.

"Yes. Please send up one of the maids to hook my dress."

"Ah, if that is all." He bowed and waved a deprecating hand. "Madame desires to be shut up? I can shut her up."

Which he did.

Why He Didn't Like Pistols.

Discussing pistols as dueling weapons, a Paris paper sought the views of a man who had the reputation of an expert on the field of honor. He at once began to rail at duels with pistols. He could not bear even to speak of them. The fact was that he had once himself at an encounter of that kind received a ball in the shoulder.

"Then you disapprove of them simply because you were defeated?"

"Why, I was not defeated."

"What!"

"No; I was a second. You may well believe that I promised myself never to mix again in affairs of that sort. However, one day I had to accompany a friend on the field. He had asked it of me as a personal favor. I could not refuse. But I insisted upon one condition."

"What was that?"

"That I should climb a tree during the firing."

"A good scheme."

"You think so? Well, I was wounded again. My friend fired in the air!"

Real Kind of Her.

"I remember hearing," says Lady Dorothy Nevill in her reminiscences, "of a very good natured lady who was always helping a relative of hers who was very extravagant. Having one summer lent this feather brained creature a considerable sum of money, what was her surprise at the end of the season to be applied to again in order that what were described as some pressing debts might be settled.

"'I am very sorry,' said the kind hearted lady, 'but I can't possibly help you again just now. In order to lend you that money some time ago I was forced to go without a motor this season.'

"'Dear me!' was the ply. 'If I had only known that I should have been delightend to lend you mine!'"

TAX SALE OF DELINQUENTS, WHAT IT MEANS.
As per advertisement, City Tax Collector Hoffman went through the formality of selling the property of delinquents on city taxes on Feb. 3. 491 lots or pieces of property were sold to the city. There is now added to the original assessment the sum of ten per cent and the additional sum of fifty cents a lot for advertising. Every six months of additional delinquency the further amount of ten per cent is added, with interest. At the end of five years the treasurer has authority to make a deed of the property to the city. The claim of the city is then in the nature of a preferred judgment against the property and can be made good in the courts.
